'Turkey to focus on production, investment, employment, exports'

President Erdogan says Turkey to close Q3 with strong economic growth thanks to leading data for September

Tuba Sahin and Aysu Bicer

ANKARA - Turkey must concentrate much more on production, investment, employment, and exports, President Recep Tayyip Erdogan said Wednesday.
"There is a new era ahead of us now," said Erdogan, addressing an economic council meeting of the Turkish Union of Chambers and Commodity Exchanges in the capital Ankara.
The government will proceed by maintaining fiscal discipline, with a growth and employment-oriented approach, he stressed.
Noting that financial and price stability are to be simultaneously ensured, Erdogan noted that immediately cutting inflation down to the single-digits would be the government's top priority.
He said Ankara will continue to provide all suitable conditions for both domestic and international investors.
"We will see that our country stands out positively in production, employment, export, and growth," Erdogan noted.

'Virus numbers rising in nearly all of Turkey'

Duygu Yener and Yesim Sert Karaaslan

ANKARA - The upward trend in COVID-19 numbers previously seen in major cities such as Istanbul, Izmir, and Bursa has now spread to nearly all of Turkey, the country's health minister warned on Wednesday.
"While we have been able to cope with the rising numbers, radical measures to stop the virus' spread seem inevitable," Fahrettin Koca said in a meeting of the parliament's Planning and Budget Commission in the capital Ankara.
